Anthropology major

Anthropology (Honours) offers coursework in advanced anthropology and research methods, as well as a dissertation on an area of particular interest.

Communication and media studies major

The Bachelor of Arts (Honours) in Communication offers theoretical and philosophical foundations for study and research of mass communication and contemporary media forms. You can choose from a variety of areas for your dissertation topic, including cinema, television, press, popular culture, radio, advertising and multimedia texts.

Career opportunities

Opportunities include research work in media and policy, further higher degree work, and positions in media.

English literature major

English Literature (Honours) focuses on critical and cultural theory, and classical literature and film. The program investigates the nature and operation of cultural institutions and the cultural production of meaning.

History major

History (Honours) offers coursework in research design and method and history specialist topics, as well as a dissertation on an area of particular personal interest.

Career opportunities

Most History Honours graduates are eligible for admission to postgraduate studies, either at Masters or Doctoral level. Other career options include teaching, journalism, publishing, public service, archives and library work or community history.

International Relations Major

International Relations (Honours) offers coursework units in Research Design and discipline-based subjects, as well as a dissertation on an area of particular personal interest.

Career opportunities

Most International Relations (Honours) graduates are eligible for admission to postgraduate studies either at Masters or Doctoral level. Other career options include public service, teaching English overseas and aid projects.

Theatre major

The Bachelor of Arts (Honours) in Theatre enables students to focus on one of the following fields: dramatic theory and history; classical drama; European Renaissance drama; modern world drama; drama for children and young people; or contemporary Australian drama.

Program aims

The program aims to produce graduates who have an advanced awareness, understanding and appreciation of the complexities of human thought, expression and behaviour as reflected in a specified discipline area. Graduates will also have demonstrated their capacity for specialised study, research and scholarship at a higher level.
