In addition to intensive work in one of the four streams, the program includes courses in Ensemble Music (practical), Structural Analysis and Music, Research and Scholarship.

They will also have the intellectual and practical skills necessary to apply knowledge in further study, research, employment, and community service.

Program objectives

On successful completion of the program students should demonstrate:

- enhanced professional skills in music teaching, performance, accompaniment or orchestral playing
- the ability to evaluate musical performance and to develop standards of musical criticism
- the practical and professional competence necessary for entry into the musical profession at an appropriately qualified level
- effective leadership in musical activity.
